The main part of this building was built in 1886 and it was enlarged in the latter nineties.

In 1929 this brick building took the place of the old school house shown at left.

Above is shown a rough sketch of the first church building which was built in 1877. The entry door was on the east side not far from the north-east corner. This building was made of cottonwood timbers, nicely covered with boards and painted. It could seat near 200 people.

Picture to the left shows the present church building which was built in 1898, altho as it now appears, it has been remodeled. It has a basement equipped with kitchen.

THE DESCENDANTS OF BENJAMIN G. BÖSE.
P R E F A C E.

Some years ago my brother, John A. Boese undertook the task of preparing a Family Tree in chart form of the descendants of Gottlieb Bose, the first of our ancestors about whom we have specific knowledge. Inasmuch as our Bose folk were already at that time widely scattered in the United States, Canada, and other parts of the world, that was an enormous undertaking, and to a large extent the result of that effort is the foundation of this report.

In a sense this publication is a continuation of that project, although it concerns itself primarily with only one branch of the Gottlieb Böse clan, namely the descendants of our grandfather Benjamin G. Bose.

In 1950 Brother John published a history of the LORETTA SETTLEMENT in Bon Homme County, South Dakota, where the widow of Benjamin G. Bose, namely Grandmother Maria Schmidt Böse, and all but two of her nine children that came to America with her, remained on their homesteads until death called them.

The children of this family were ten in number but one son David died in Russia at about age of four years. One daughter, namely Kathryn joined the Menonite community at Marion, South Dakota and later moved to Canada where she spent the latter years of her life. One son Jacob spent the last years of his life in Oklahoma but had lived in the Loretta Community for more than a quarter of a century.

John's story of the Loretta Community is therefore to a large extent the story of the Benjamin G. Bose branch of the Gottlieb Bose clan.

The book, LORETTA'S SETTLEMENT, contains much of the background information about their past which we shall not include in this report, the main object of which is to list, as nearly up to date as possible, all the descendants of Benjamin and Maria (Schmidt) Böse, which in itself is a formidable undertaking.

To bring together all the data involved a tremendous amount of correspondence, a task performed for the most part by Mrs. Ernest Tschetter, the former Martha Boese, the daughter of Jacob M. Boese who now lives in Freeman, South Dakota. To her untiring effort and the co-operation of many individuals, too numerous to mention, who filled out and returned questionnaires goes much of the credit for the success of this undertaking.

Also to be mentioned is Maria Boese, a sister of Mrs. Tschetter, as she did the typeing of the main register. Needless to say, Brother John deserves our thanks for the continuous guidance and collaboration of this report.

Since some who will have this report may not have John's history of the Loretta Community, it seems appropriate to include with this account a brief summary of our family history and a few comments about Grandmother Böse by those of us still living, whose lives overlapped, by a few years at least, that of our grandmother, the oldest member of our clan to come to America's shores with her family in 1874.

SPECULATIONS ABOUT OUR MORE DISTANT PAST

Although considerable research has been done in Mennonite history, it is not certain when or where our Low German forbears became associated with the Anabaptist movement.

We know that Menno Simons renounced Catholicism in Holland in 1536 and became a leader of pacifistic groups there during the reign of the Catholic Spainard Charles V (1519-1556).

Charles seems to have been quite liberal from the beginning, but later became alarmed at the spread of Protestantism in the northern provinces of the Netherlands and imposed severe measures of restraint to check this trend. It was during the reign of his son, Philip II, who succeeded Charles in 1556, that both civil and religious liberty were seriously suppressed in Holland. It is quite understandable, therefore, that many Protestants, among them no doubt some followers of Menno Simons, fled from Holland to other parts of Europe to escape persecution.

By the Treaty Of Passau, in 1552, the Protestants had secured religious liberty in Prussia, so it was but natural that many fugitives from the Netherlands chose Prussia as their goal, and it is quite likely that some of these settled in the Vistula River valley, from whence the trek of the Mennonites to Poland and Russia began near the close of the 18th century.

From the foregoing facts some writers have drawn the conclusion that our ancestors were of Dutch extractions, rather than of German, and it is quite likely that groups of Mennonites among whom such names as VAN DER SMISSEN, VAN DER STEEN, perhaps also Thiessen, have a Hollandish background. Furthermore a Dutch origin is indicated in the groups in whose dialect expressions occur like "van Doag", meaning today. But names like Böse, Schmidt, Schultz, Unruh, and Becker are more characteristically German, and the student of language origins and mutations will be impressed by the close similarity of our Low German dialect to the language brought to England in the 5th Century, A.D., by the Angles and Saxons, which there became the basis first of so-called OLD ENGLISH and eventually of present-day English.

This writer is therefore inclined to believe that our ancestors were, for the most part, of north German stock for many generations before their migration to Poland and Russia.

However it is more than likely that intermarriages occurred between descendants of the Dutch element in the Graudenz area and the native Low Germans that became associated with the Mennonite sect. Adaptations in the matter of dialects must also have taken place, the Dutch adopting expressions from the Low German element and vice versa. Thus by the time the migration toward the southeast began, it was probably pretty hard to tell who was of Dutch stock or who of predominantly German lineage.

FROM HISTORICAL UNCERTAINTIES TO POSITIVE FACTS

Although it has not yet been substantiated by positive proof, it is quite likely that our people lived in the Graudenz area of Prussia, some 50 miles south of Danzig, before their migration into the Polish sector that fell to Russia at the partition of Poland in 1772. At any rate, records kept by some Low Germans of their journey indicate that they began their trek at Graudenz, and while no church or other records have as yet been discovered to show that our people followed that trail, we surmise that they, too, originated in the Graudenz area of Prussia.

In 1789 an edict issued by the king of Prussia prohibited the Mennonites from owning land in Prussia, and Catherine II of Russia had granted the Mennonites exemption from military service for a period of 100 years in 1773; so it was but natural that large groups of Mennonites left Prussia toward the turn of the century to establish colonies under the domain of Catherine the Great.

The first positive record that we have of our immediate family history is contained in a church record book kept by the Reverend Peter Schmidt, father of Rev. Benjamin P. Schmidt, who together with his son-in-law, the Rev. Cornelius Ewert, shepherded the Heinrichsdorf group when they arrived in America in 1874. This church record book is now in the archives of the Mennonite History Museum at Bethel College, North Newton, Kansas, and a copy of it is presently in the possession of the Friedensberg Mennonite church at Avon, S.D. Rev. H. U. Schmidt of Meno, Oklahoma, a former resident of the Loretta community made this copy and in 1956 he graciously presented it to his once home church.

From this church record we know that Grandfather Böse and three of his sons were among a group at Waldheim, a villiage in South Russia not far from the Sea of Azof, who had secured permission to establish the "KOLONIE HEINRICHSORF" in the West Ukraine near Berditchev, and not very far from Kiev, Russia. What we do not know is how and when Grandfather Benjamin Böse left Prussia.

THE QUARTER CENTURY AT HEINRICHSORF.

The "Kolonie Heinrichsdorf" was started in 1848 and more fully established in 1849. Farming was perhaps the major occupation of the Mennonites who constituted this group, altho some did considerable weaving and Grandfather Benjamin Böse was a wagon-maker, his son John was a carpenter by trade and his sons Henry and Martin were blacksmiths.

The land was leased from a local proprier, hence their labors were in part for the landlord and there was no great inducement to remain there permanently; hence, when the charter granted them by Catherine the Great in 1773, granting them immunity from military service, expired in 1873, they naturally cast about for a more desirable location where they might practice a way of life and worship in keeping with their understanding of the teachings of Christ.

Ever since William Penn had offered refuge to a group of Mennonites in Pennsylvania and had assigned to them a parcel of his land along the Susquehanna River, America had become known to other Mennonites as the "HOME OF THE FREE". The eyes of the Heinrichsdorf and Karlswalde congregations therefore naturally turned toward America. A comission of twelve men, of which the well known Bishop Tobias A. Unruh who served as a sort of district superintendent over the Mennonite congregations of this area was sent to America to investigate where good land was still available in tracts large enough so that they could settle close together and form church communities in their new locations. Dakota Territory seemed to offer fair opportunities at that time for such settlements, so that is where this group decided to go.

Several years ago Brother John was able to obtain from the Immigration Office at Washington, D.C., a photostatic copy of the passenger list of a steamer landing at Ellis Island, New York on the 2nd of September, 1874, filed by authorities showing who had landed as passengers on the British Steamship THE COLINA, the ship that brought the Heinrichsdorf group to America.

On this roster the name of Grandmother Böse heads the list of the Böse family, (Grandfather Böse having passed on to his reward some eight years prior to this time) and we like to think this was an indication of the respect in which they held their mother. (It may be noted in this connection that the family name appears on this list as BOSE, without the umlaut. Later the name was generally written BOESE and pronounced like BAIZE. In fact, some have adopted that spelling, and others write it BAESE, and some of us have adopted the spelling found in the first document filed in this country by our people, namely BOSE. You will notice that in the most part in the main register that spelling the name BOESE dominates.)

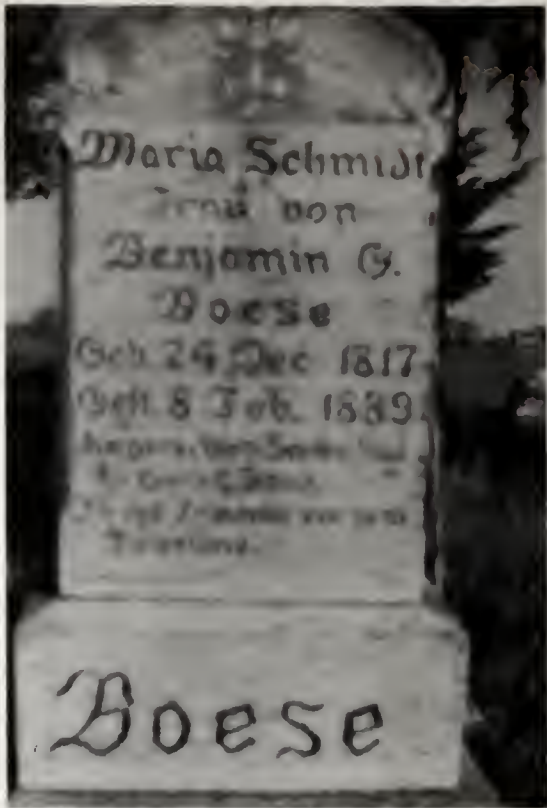

IN DAKOTA TERRITORY.

When the Heinrichsdorfers arrived at Yankton in September, 1874 what is now North and South Dakota was then a single unit, known as Dakota Territory. Grandmother Böse's family consisted of 5 sons, of whom three, namely Jacob, John and Henry were already married, and 4 daughters of whom one, Helena, Mrs. Fredrick Dirks, was married. A fourth son, Martin, was married shortly after their arrival at Yankton. The three married sons each had several children when they landed in America. The three unmarried daughters soon found employment in American homes as maids to help with the family finances. The youngest son, Abraham, also found some employment, earning as much as time permitted to enable him to acquire a part equity in an oxteam, and the necessary equipment to set up as a homesteader. It was with him that grandmother was to make her home in the years she still had to live in this world.

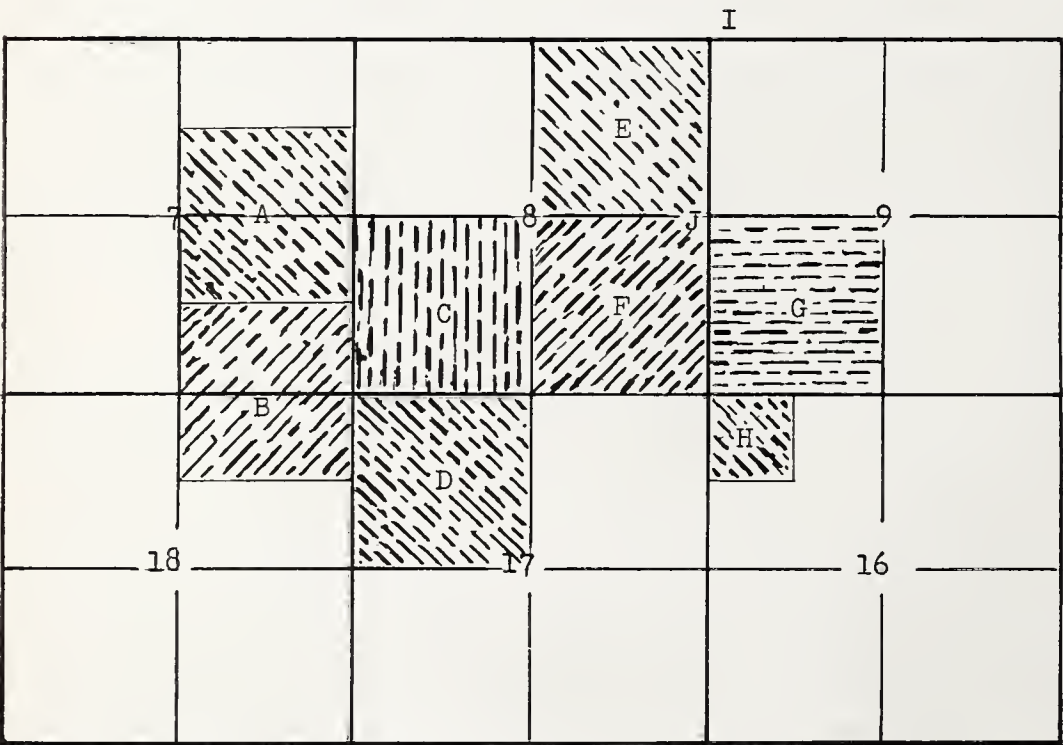

Southeastern Dakota was rapidly being settled as soon as the United States government succeeded in moving the Sioux Indians from the land the Indians had agreed to vacate, to their 400,000 -acre reservation in Charles Mix County. This was accomplished in July, 1859.

Between that time and the arrival of our people in 1874 settlers had already claimed much of the land in southeastern Dakota as far west as Yankton and beyond. A government land office was opened at Springfield in 1872. It was necessary now to go some distance northwest of Springfield to find sufficient open land to accommodate all of the Heinrichsdorf group on contiguous claims, which took something like 15 sections, or square miles. For the most part they settled in what is now Hancock Township, in Bon Homme County, Dakota Territory.

Shown below here is a plat indicating sections of land where each of the Boese folk homesteaded. You will notice that the 8 parcels of land lie compactly within 6 sections, namely, 7, 8, 9, 16, 17 and 18. The letters on the chart represent the following: A -Elizabeth, Mrs. Tobias Ratzlaff; B -John B. Boese; C -Jacob B. Boese, D -Martin B. Boese; E -Abraham B. Boese; F -Helena, Mrs. Fredrick Dirks; G -Henry B. Boese, and H -Eva, Mrs. Tobias Schmidt. I -represents location of the church and J -the school. This in short identifies the members of our Boese family who resided here during the pioneer years. Possession and residence were not all acquired the same year but these families lived here for the most part for some 30 or more years after their arrival in Dakota Territory.

We do not have a photograph of Grandmother Boese but are showing here a picture of the grave stone. Her grave is near the north edge in the cemetery of the home church south of Avon, South Dakota.

We feel that this is a unique incident which is here related in our Boese history. Join us in letting the imagination create a mental picture for you, featuring so many members of an immediate family going out to look for a homestead and locating so near each other. Truly, they must have had high regard for each other as otherwise they would not have located so near each other. We wonder if there is another instance among Mennonite settlers where this might have been duplicated, and that so near the center of a community. Notice that school and church were near by. And it would be in place to add here that this group were loyal supporters of the church and otherwise an integral part of the community.

Several families built sod shanties and established themselves on their homesteads in the fall of 1874, but most of them thought best to wait until the following spring.

This picture of a clump of trees is (Oct. 1956) located but a short distance south of the Mr. & Mrs. Henry Ewert home which is less than a mile east of the Mennonite church. The trees are located near the south east corner of the section and not far from the road. No doubt some of the members of our immediate group when passing by, paused a bit and allowed their mind to recollect the past, seeing these trees where the first homesteaders shanty stood that started the LORETTA SETTLEMENT and do we realize how much those rugged pioneer days of 1874 had in store for us. And as we look at this spot can we imagine how different it seemed here in these wide open spaces compared to the village life these folks had left but a few weeks before! At night they could hear the howl of the coyote even inside of their shanty but otherwise the world seemed very quiet as the nearest neighbors were not very near.

At least two members of our immediate group, namely the Henry B. Boese family and the Fred Dirks family spent the severe winter of 1874-5 here on the open prairie. The Fred Dirks family spent it with the Rev. Cornelius Ewert family occupying the same shanty on the spot above described.

We can imagine Grandmother Böse keeping house for her youngest son, who was still unmarried, often at home all alone while her son got some of the land under cultivation, and later as he hauled part of his first crop to Yankton, 40 miles away, by ox-team, altho she probably stayed with some of her other children when he was gone for a longer time and probably for days at a time, for such trip by ox-team involved time.

Those first years on the homestead must have tried the souls of the settlers, particularly the older ones. The Sioux Indian Reservation was just a few miles away, west of the Choteau Creek, in Charles Mix County, and the Sioux were a roving and savage-looking tribe that seemed always to be hungry. The rations they received from the U.S. government never seemed to last until more were forthcoming, so they came to their white neighbors for a handout or to swap shoes and other clothing for something to eat.

We can imagine Grandmother Böse barricading the door when these red natives drove on the yard, she pretending that no one was at home and praying that they might leave without doing any damage. Her prayers must have been answered, too, for we know of no instance in which the Indians caused serious trouble to our people.

Perhaps it was a blessing that radio and television had not yet been invented to broadcast the news in 1876, just one year after their arrival on their homesteads, that Indian Bands had just completely annihilated General Custer's entire force on the Little Big Horn River in Montana, for what guarantee did they have that the Sioux from Charles Mix County would not also go on a rampage and attack their white neighbors.

But the Indians were not the only worry these pioneers faced. 1876 was one of the years when clouds of grasshoppers appeared so thick that they darkened the western sky and almost completely hid the sun for periods of time. Where these grasshoppers landed nothing was left after a few hours of what little grain there had been, nor of the grass in their pastures.

Another bewildering experience for Grandmother Böse was to see a seemingly endless trek of Texas long-horn cattle cross her son's homestead on the way to Ft. Randall there to be butchered and the meat to be doled out to the Indians. Where these herds had crossed no hay could be made or crops harvested that year. Sometimes the advance notice of the approach of these cattle was realized when big clouds of dust were seen at quite some distance.

Then, when winter came, terrific blizzards blew up snow-drifts that sometimes covered shanties completely, leaving only the stove-pipe chimney to mark the place where the shanty stood. Those were indeed days when it took real faith in God to persevere and hold out until better days would come. We owe much indeed to our pioneer forbears for the sacrifices they made that we might in due time be privileged to live a more abundant life in this great land of ours!

Grandmother Böse died at the home of her son, Abraham, with whom she had made her home since the arrival in America, on Feb. 8th 1889, and was buried in the Friedensberg cemetery, where in due time seven of her nine children were also laid to rest. A simple marble slab marks Grandmother's final resting place.

"P E A C E, P R O G R E S S, A N D P R O S P E R I T Y"

The Civil War in America was ended just about a decade before our people arrived in America and there were no war clouds on the horizon for a period of years. New land produced good crops when the rainfall was adequate and soon new and better homes replaced the original homesteader shanties. Children were born, and large families were an economic asset in the development of the pioneer dreams.

Worship services were held for a few years in the homes of those who had somewhat larger dwellings, but in 1877, only a few short years after their arrival, they built their first church building, and 21 years later that original sanctuary was replaced by a better and larger one that has served the Friedensberg congregation to this day. A year later, in 1899, the Northern District Conference of the General Conference Mennonites was for the first time held in this church. Parochial (German) and public schools were maintained from the beginning. A State Normal School was opened in 1897 at Springfield, and in 1903 the Mennonite Academy at Freeman was built with the aid of subscriptions from people of this community. By now a number of family members of this community availed themselves of the educational advantages offered by various other schools, and have become teachers, ministers, nurses, county officials, etc. Of the first American-born generation only a few completed a four-year college course. As the years passed and young people could be more easily spared from the work on the farms, many more enjoyed these educational advantages.

Progress and prosperity went hand in hand and no similar period of history has witnessed more changes than the one we have briefly sketched in this account. From ox-team to automobile and tractor, from tallow candle to electric light, and many similar developments characterize this period. We are indeed fortunate that our ancestors did not remain in Europe and "make the most" of a bad situation, but instead were willing to face the hardships of a rugged pioneer life.

It is to be hoped that in present and future generations ambition will not fail when it comes to the acceptance of great challenges in various callings, so that in the not too distant future someone can write a really creditable "WHO'S WHO AMONG THE DESCENDANTS OF G O T T L I E B B Ö S E."

E X P L A N A T I O N

As you will notice in the diagram on the next page, the Benjamin G. Boese report is identified by the letter "c". You will therefore find in the register that all identification numbers include this letter. You will also notice that the last number in the register is 813c4 Adolph Schmidt Jr. This indicates that the entries in the register so far add up to that number and the figure 4 following the letter c indicates that Adolph Schmidt Jr. belongs to the 4th generation.

Notice also that each name in the register is followed by another number. This is the identification number of the parents. Thus one may trace back any entry to the progenator, Benjamin G. Boese.

Married-in members do not get a number but assume the same number in the INDEX as the member bears to whom the married-in member is married. Names of married-in members do appear in the Index.

240 Glenn Boese

511 Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Boese

771 Mr. & Mrs. David E Boese

463 Mr. & Mrs.
Abram Nickel

143 Mr. and Mrs.
Peter J. Boese

711 Rev. & Mrs. Harry Dirks

3c3 Mr. & Mrs. Henry J. Boese

Names reported after this list was typed were added where possible and in that case a letter was placed in front of the last regular number and same were identified in that manner. In other cases where there was no room to add names, the same will be found at the end of the register.

It could be suggested here that any parent appearing on the register can make a diagram similar to the ones appearing on this and the next page, and in that manner observe all their descendants at a glance.

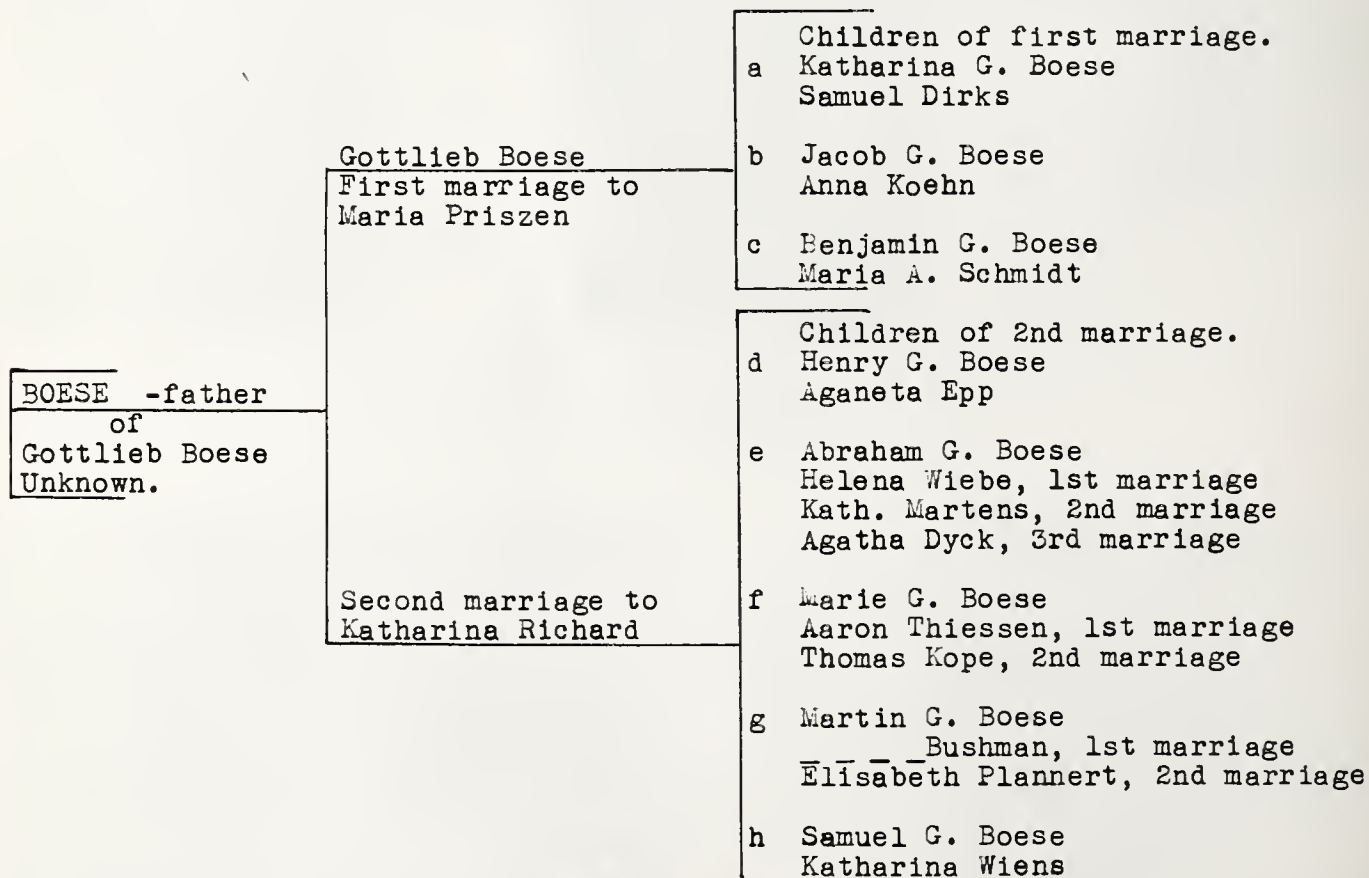

In this connection it could also be mentioned that there are blank pages in this book in which individual family records may be entered and preserved.

If for any reason any detail is missing, it was not omitted purposely. In some instances those reporting had overlooked a part of the information asked for. Likewise, in some instances we were not able to obtain pictures, which we regret. We would like to state in advance, in case any are displeased, that we have tried to be impartial. The greatest obstacle in an undertaking like this, is that it can not be financed successfully. There are a lot of expenses. It requires time.

In the register the words "See Notes" appear. Notes following this register are identified by the number of the entry and had to be brief. It is likely that not all who are in the ministry have been reported. Kind of church and charge they now serve was not reported.

Shown in the diagram here below are the children of Gottlieb Boese, eight in number, six sons and two daughters. Listing shows who were from the first marriage and who from the second marriage. The first member shown is identified by the letter "a", the second by the letter "b" and so on each one having a letter. Judging from the interest taken in family reunions (and in this case there is a definite movement under way), it is possible that all the eight children may be set up and published in book form and in that case it would be necessary to identify each branch because an index would be necessary and since there are members who have identical names, this would indicate their family branch.
